HOW OLD IS AN OLD BRICK

Architects and Builders Have Knotty Question for Lawmakers-Construction Laws Require Material Modifications and Additions.

Complaints concerning the present Building Code are becoming more numerous as the building boom proceeds. It is declared that the present law prohibits the use of old brick in all buildings of three or four stories, even though the entire weight rests on steel or concrete construction. A strict enforcement of this provision would have caused great financial loss to builders in Richmond, but recently the legal question of how old must a brick he to be an "old" brick has been raised, and pending decision on this matter builders have proceeded on the theory that, as long as their buildings are supported by steel or concrete, a brick must be a very old one in order to be prohibited by the ordinance.

FIRMS RE-EMPLOYING MEN

Engrossed Certificate Will Re Granted Employers Who Give Soldiers Old Jobs.

Privilege to place in the firm's service flag the shield of the United States has been accorded by the War Department to those employers who have made it a consistent part of their business policy to re-employ everybody who formerly worked for them and left to serve in the army or navy during the war.

The citation is signed by the Secretary of War and his assistant, and is handsomely engraved and engrossed with the name of the recipient. All that the employer must do to secure the citation is to address the assistant secretary, stating that he will re-employ his old service men. Arthur Woods, assistant secretary of war, should be addressed to secure the citation.

The announcement has been made that between 70 and 80 per cent of the service men discharged have had offers of their pre-war jobs. The War Department is making every effort possible to insure that the hero of today shall not be left without a position to which he can turn when honorably discharged.

'Home, Sweet Home' Calls Early Close

V. M. I. Final Ball Ordered Stopped Before Usual Hour.

Dancers stopped short at the Virginia Military Institute finals at Lexington Wednesday night. There is a long established custom at the school that the final ball shall run well into the morning, usually until 5 o'clock. This custom is now broken, for the orchestra played "Home, Sweet Home," one hour earlier than usual Wednesday. Dancing closed at 4 o'clock.

Before the affair started it was announced to the dancers that "face-to-face" dancing would not be tolerated. "Leaders were advised beforehand." Colonel Purdie, commandant of the school said last night. "We wanted to take a stand just as they have at other places." he explained, "and when the ruling was disobeyed the orchestra played 'Home, Sweet Home,' and the ball was closed."

The affair marked the close of commencement week and many alumni returned to attend it. In the opening figure seventy-two couples were on the floor. The figures were brilliant and executed in delightful military precision and the event was the most largely attended in the history of the School.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS HEAR DR. POLING SPEAK

Closing the State convention of the Christian Endeavor Society in the Seventh Street Christian Church last night, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who served as a welfare director in France, told of his work in the interests of prohibition among soldiers in France. He asserted that the present is "religion's hour" and that it will shoulder the grave and responsible tasks now thrust upon it.

Delegates will leave today for their home. All expressed themselves as highly pleased with their entertainment here.

Roanoke won the banner to the society presenting the best report. The West End Presbyterian Church was the winner.

During the morning sessions the first Virginia Convention of Junior Endeavorers convened in session in the room where Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, organized the State Union of Virginia. Miss Annie Wintermeyer, State Junior superintendent, presided, George Erret Miley, Jr., of Richmond, rendering the welcome address, the response to which was given by Harold Wintermeyer, of Roanoke. The Juniors found much interest in a direct communication from Miss Grace E. Hooper, national Junior field secretary.
